SELECTED HEADLINES

A rally in beaten down technology companies and a 10.73% jump in Exxaro Resources, South Africa's biggest coal miner, pushed the country's major stock indexes higher. The tech sector jumped 1.99%, led by technology investor Naspers, which indirectly holds around 30% stake in Chinese company Tencent. Higher coal prices and increased demand particularly from Asia due to a post-pandemic recovery boosted Exxaro, which exports high-quality coal to countries such as India and China, the two biggest importers of coal. Overall, the FTSE/JSE All-share index rose by 0.65% and the FTSE/JSE Top-40 companies' index ended up 0.59%.

MTN Uganda to offer 20% stake in IPO

MTN Group agreed to list 20% of its Uganda unit on the country's stock exchange, the latest move by Africa's largest wireless carrier to allow more local investors to buy and sell shares in individual units. The move by the South African company is aimed at ensuring broad-based ownership in its operating subsidiaries, according to a statement on Tuesday. The decision follows listings of MTN's units in Nigeria, Ghana and Rwanda, which to some extent took place after pressure from government and local regulators. The creation of a Lagos-listed entity was part of a deal to settle a multi-billion dollar fine for being slow to disconnect customers without proper documentation. MTN is in the middle of a scaling back of the company, with the focus turning primarily to African telecom and mobile-banking services. The Johannesburg-based carrier abandoned its business in Syria and is looking to sell the Afghanistan and Yemen units. An upcoming initial public offering of IHS Holding Ltd. will allow MTN to reduce its stake in the pan-African towers company.

AB InBev explores $1.2bn sale of German beer brands

Anheuser-Busch InBev NV is exploring a sale of some of its German beer brands as it focuses on growth away from the world's most popular alcoholic beverage, according to people familiar with the matter. The portfolio of regional brands could be valued at about 1 billion euros ($1.2 billion), the people said, asking not to be identified discussing confidential information. The world's largest brewer is working with an adviser as it explores options, they said. Discussions are ongoing and there's no certainty that AB InBev will decide to proceed with a sale of the German brands, according to the people. "We continuously assess our options to optimise our business and drive growth," a spokesperson for Belgium-based AB InBev said in an emailed statement. AB InBev employs more than 2 000 people in Germany, where it brews beers including Franziskaner Weissbier, Hasseroeder and Spaten. Its brewery in Bremen, where it makes the iconic Beck's brand, is the largest in the country. Many of the brands were inherited from Interbrew, which merged with Brazilian beermaker Ambev in 2004 to form InBev – the company that later combined with Anheuser-Busch. While Germany is Europe's largest brewer, producing about a quarter of beers originating from the continent, it exports less of the drink than both the Netherlands and Belgium, according to European Commission figures. Under new Chief Executive Officer Michel Doukeris, who took charge in July, AB InBev is now looking beyond beer for future growth. A 25-year company veteran, he's eyeing opportunities in products such as hard seltzers and canned cocktails.

EUROPEAN MARKET COMMENTARY

SELECTED HEADLINES

European stocks rallied on Tuesday with regional investors brushing off losses on Wall Street earlier in the week. The pan-European Stoxx 600 closed up 1.2%, with banks jumping 3.4% to lead gains while tech stocks added 2.1%. On the economic data front, final purchasing managers' index (PMI) readings from across the euro zone showed business growth dented in September by inflationary pressures and supply chain problems. The final IHS Markit composite PMI came in at 56.2 last month, compared to 59.0 in August. Anything above 50 represents an expansion.

The major averages rebounded on Tuesday following a technology-centered market rout in the previous session. Mega-cap technology names were solidly in the green on Tuesday. Netflix rose 5.2%, Amazon gained just shy of 1%. Apple and Alphabet advanced 1.4% and nearly 1.8%, respectively. Facebook shares rose 2% following a 5% slide on Monday due to a whistleblower's claims and a site outage. Stocks tied to the economic recovery, like cruise lines, airlines, retailers and banks, also rose alongside the broader market.

ASIAN MARKET COMMENTARY

SELECTED HEADLINES

Shares in Asia-Pacific were mixed in early trade, following an overnight bounce on Wall Street with stocks rebounding from Monday's losses. The Reserve Bank of New Zealand (RBNZ) this morning raised its official cash rate to 0.5%, joining South Korea and Norway in being among the earliest countries to raise rates in the pandemic era. "The Committee noted that further removal of monetary policy stimulus is expected over time, with future moves contingent on the medium-term outlook for inflation and employment," the RBNZ said in a release.

COMMODITY MARKET COMMENTARY

SELECTED HEADLINES

Gold prices inched lower earlier today as a firmer dollar and rise in U.S. Treasury yields weighed on the precious metal's appeal, with investors focused on U.S. non-farm payrolls data due later this week. U.S. oil prices rose for a fifth day today to their highest since 2014 amid global concerns about energy supply on signs of tightness in crude, natural gas and coal markets. Brent crude prices also climbed for a fourth day on the supply anxiety, particularly after the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and its allies, known as OPEC+, decided on Monday to say with their planned output increase rather than boosting it further.

The rand gained on Tuesday afternoon as the central bank highlighted inflation risks in a biannual review of its monetary policy stance. Asked about those risks, Governor Lesetja Kganyago said the bank stood ready to act if it saw them materialising. At the close of the session, the rand was trading around R14.97 to the dollar, 0.33% firmer. The rand's gains came despite the safe-haven dollar edging higher, as traders remained cautious ahead of a key payrolls report at the end of the week that could provide clues about the U.S. Federal Reserve's next move.
