SELECTED HEADLINES

Stocks listed in Johannesburg gained on Monday in a broad-based rally largely led by the mining sector where both diversified and precious metals miners rose. The local stock exchange mirrored a global optimism led by gains in China and higher crude oil prices. The benchmark all-share index was up 1.32% to 66,101 points while the blue-chip index of top 40 companies was up 1.4% to 59,663 points.

Telkom says Netflix no longer available on SA provider

Telkom said Netflix will no longer be available on the South African phone and internet company's set-top box from October. A deal between the parties has come to an end and will not be renewed, Content Executive Wanda Mkhize said in a statement, without giving a specific reason. Other content partnerships will be announced in due course, she said. The move comes after MultiChoice, Africa's largest pay-TV provider, signed deals with Netflix and Amazon.com to offer their streaming services through its new decoder. The continent is a small market for paid streaming video, with just a few million subscribers out of a population of more than 1 billion, and the US giants have targeted it for future growth. Netflix has started to produce more local content, debuting South African dramas "Queen Sono" and "Blood and Water" in recent years. The US company has also appointed its first African board member, Zimbabwean media tycoon Strive Masiyiwa, in a bid to grow on the continent.

Inside Massmart's e-commerce growth drive

With an explosion in online sales expected in South Africa in the coming years, e-commerce is becoming core to the growth strategy of Walmart-owned Massmart. The group, which owns brands such as Builders, Makro and Game, has launched mobile shopping "mini apps" in partner Vodacom Group's new VodaPay "super app", which was "hard-launched" in South Africa on Sunday with an aggressive advertising campaign in consumer media. But this is just the start of much bigger ambitions for Massmart, Sylvester John, its head of e-commerce, said in an interview with TechCentral on Friday. He said online retail is becoming a much more important component of Massmart's strategy, especially given the group's expectations that e-commerce in South Africa will roughly triple in size as a proportion over overall sales, from about 3% now, to about 11-12% by 2030. John, who has been with Walmart in the US for the past 10 years – six of those involved in e-commerce and "omnichannel" (integrated sales channel) initiatives – said the Bentonville, Arkansas-headquartered retail giant is "paying close attention to e-commerce" in its various operations around the world, and that includes South Africa. E-commerce a "critical part" of Massmart's growth strategy, he said. The launch of Massmart's mini apps for Builders and Makro on VodaPay comes in the same week that Makro completed its acquisition of OneCart, the grocery shopping marketplace and logistics business, which, like rivals Bottles (bought by Pick n Pay last year and rebranded Pick n Pay ASAP) and Zulzi, has enjoyed strong growth during the Covid-19 lockdown.

European stocks were muted on Monday, searching for direction after a volatile week. The pan-European Stoxx 600 hovered around the flatline and finished flat, with travel and leisure stocks shedding 1% while basic resources gained 3%. Three European Central Bank policymakers on Friday discussed the possibility of exiting pandemic-era monetary and fiscal support measures even if it makes some governments unhappy, according to reports from a panel discussion in Slovakia. The ECB is expected to make a decision on its extraordinary stimulus measures in December.

AMERICAN MARKET COMMENTARY

SELECTED HEADLINES

U.S. stocks fell to start the week Monday as investors weighed surging oil prices, economic worries and major third-quarter earnings results ahead. Stocks churned for most of the day, but selling increased in the final hour, with the major averages closing the session at their lows. Energy stocks gained for most of the session as oil prices jumped, but also rolled over with the broader market into the close. Meanwhile, Goldman on Monday cut its U.S. economic growth forecast. The firm lowered its 2022 growth estimate to 4% from 4.4% and took its 2021 estimate down a tick to 5.6% from 5.7%.

SELECTED HEADLINES

Asian shares dropped this morning, as a global energy crunch fuelled inflation fears, clouding investor sentiment before the U.S. corporate earnings season. Also weighing on investor sentiment, Reuters reported that some of China Evergrande Group's offshore bondholders have not received an interest payment by the Monday deadline. Rivals Modern Land and Sinic became the latest developers scrambling to delay bond payment deadlines.

Gold traded flat in early trade today as the dollar held firm on expectations that the Federal Reserve will announce a tapering of its bond purchases next month. Oil prices fell for the first time in four days this morning, taking a breather after weeks of gains fuelled by a rebound in global demand that is contributing to energy shortages in economies from Europe to Asia. Power prices have risen to records in recent weeks, driven by energy shortages in Asia, Europe and the United States. Soaring natural gas prices are also encouraging power generators to swap the cleaner-burning fuel for oil.

The rand weakened against a stronger dollar on Monday as investors remained confident the U.S. Federal Reserve would start tapering its stimulus measures this year and as a local business confidence indicator dipped. At the close of the session, the rand was trading around R15.07 to the dollar, or 0.94% softer. A South African business confidence index fell to 91.0 in September from 91.9 in August, as retail sales and manufacturing output declined. Domestic focus will turn to August mining and manufacturing numbers due today, and retail sales on Wednesday.
