Stocks ignored local data yesterday, taking their cue from global markets as stagflation risks hit some stock markets. The Johannesburg All-Share index weakened 0.17% while the Top-40 index fell 0.27%. Earlier on Tuesday, data showed August manufacturing output rose 1.8% year on year while mining production grew 2.0% in annual terms the same month. Manufacturing surprised to the upside while mining came in weaker than expected, reinforcing the view that the economic recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic has been uneven across sectors.

M&R expands in US market with R423m deal

Engineering and construction group Murray & Roberts (M&R) has acquired private, fourth-generation multi-trade engineering and contracting business JJ White Incorporated in the United States for a maximum of $28.25 million (around R423 million). The acquisition was made through M&R's subsidiary Clough, the brand name for M&R's energy, resources and infrastructure platform (ERI). M&R said on Tuesday the transaction is being undertaken as part of the group's strategy to diversify and expand the service offering of its ERI business platform in North America. It said this is similar to its recent market sector diversification in the Asia-Pacific region, which has seen significant order book growth over the past three years. The collapse of the oil price in November 2014 resulted in Clough's contribution to M&R progressively declining from a R1 billion profit in 2013/2014 to a R450 million loss in M&R's 2020 financial year. To address this, M&R broadened the focus of its ERI platform beyond the oil and gas sector to include the broader energy sector, resources sector, and specialised infrastructure. Clough in September reported that it had a record order book of R37 billion at end-June this year, which contributed towards M&R ending the year with an all-time-high order book of R60.7 billion for this period. M&R CEO Henry Laas said in a presentation at the time that Clough's order book gave some sense of the success the group has achieved over time in implementing its strategy, which is currently bearing fruit and starting to manifest in this order book that it has built up over a period of time. He added that M&R is extremely excited about the R60.7 billion group order book, which provides the group with the opportunity to experience strong revenue growth and earnings growth in its 2022 financial year and beyond. Laas confirmed at the time that M&R was pursuing an acquisition opportunity in the US with the objective of diversifying its service offering in the US so that it mirrors what the platform is doing in Australia in the Asia-Pacific region. M&R said on Tuesday the JJ White acquisition builds an immediate robust entry into new territories and new markets and will leverage JJ White's existing customer base to expand Clough's engineering, procurement and construction services and footprint across the US. "This investment presents significant growth potential and opportunity for market share expansion and is expected to provide strong returns," it said. M&R said JJ White is headquartered in Philadelphia in Pennsylvania, and is licensed to deliver its services in 22 states. It said JJ White specialises in industrial maintenance and related construction services that cover a full range of mechanical and electrical disciplines, and has an in-house fabrication facility, with its capability including the design and fabrication of American Petroleum Institute (API) 650 oil storage tanks. It added that JJ White has achieved average earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation of $5.1 million, on a normalised basis and adjusted for one-off non-recurring items, over the last four financial years to end-December 2020, which was attributable to the net assets being acquired.

European stocks closed mostly lower on Tuesday amid volatile sentiment in global markets. The pan-European Stoxx 600 closed 0.1% lower provisionally, paring losses slightly after falling as much as 1.2% in early deals. Health care, retail and basic resources stocks fell 0.5% each, leading the losses. The muddled trade in Europe on Tuesday comes amid a choppy period for global markets, as investors monitor the outlook for inflation, supply chain issues, bond yields and central bank policy.

The three major U.S. stock indexes closed lower for a third consecutive session Tuesday ahead of a key inflation reading and a kick-off to third-quarter earnings season. The averages traded near the flatline for much of Tuesday's session before selling picked up into the close. Markets were "mostly in wait-and-see mode" ahead of report releases this week, Bank of America said. The consumer price index for September is slated to be announced Wednesday morning. Economists expect prices for an array of consumer goods to jump 0.3% in September from the month prior and 5.3% year over year, according to Dow Jones.

Asian shares were on edge this morning as worries about soaring power prices fuelling inflation weighed on sentiment and drove expectations the United States would taper its emergency bond buying programme, holding the dollar at a one-year high. Also contributing to the uneasy mood, investors are waiting for a raft of data releases due to be published today, including Chinese trade figures, U.S. consumer price inflation data, and minutes of the U.S. Federal Reserve's September policy meeting. Hong Kong's stock market was closed in the morning because of a typhoon.

Gold steadied this morning as investors awaited U.S. inflation data and minutes from the Federal Reserve's last policy meeting for clues as to when the central bank would start withdrawing its pandemic stimulus. Oil prices dropped earlier today, after a mixed finish in the previous session, amid worries that soaring coal and natural gas prices in China, India and Europe will stoke inflation and slow global growth, reducing oil demand.

The rand gained against the dollar on Tuesday, as analysts said markets were pricing in an interest rate increase by the central bank in November. At the close, the rand was trading around R14.97 to the dollar, 0.63% firmer. The South African Reserve Bank (SARB) has kept rates on hold at its previous seven monetary policy meetings, but at its Monetary Policy Review last week it highlighted inflation risks.
