Tiger Brands expects half-year profit to drop by up to 15%

JSE-listed Tiger Brands says major operational disruptions could see the company reporting 15% less profit from continuing operations for the six months to September 30, and cost it almost R700 million in once-off costs and stock losses. The owner of popular household brands such as Jungle Oats, Koo, Albany and Oros says it expects its headline earning per share (Heps) for its continuing operations to be between 60 and 179 cents less than the 1 196 cents reported in the previous comparable period. In July, the company was dealt some tough financial blows, as it was faced not only with counting the cost of the unrest seen in parts of KwaZulu-Natal and Gauteng, but also the recall of about 20 million Koo and Hugo canned vegetable products suspected of defective packaging. According to a Sens trading update released by the company on Tuesday, the write-off of assets, coupled with stock losses experienced during the civil unrest, will cost the company about R100 million and the recall of the canned vegetable products will cost it R647 million. "The after-tax impact of the stock losses, together with the impact of the recall, is estimated to be in the region of 318 cents per share," the company said. "The increase in Heps from total operations was primarily due to the losses recorded in Value Added Meat Products (VAMP) in FY2020 compared to a small profit in the year ended September 30, 2021," the company stated. Tiger Brands sold VAMP, its processed meats division, to Molare (Pty) Limited and Silver Blade Abattoir for a total of R428 million in 2020. The sale came after the division was implicated in the listeriosis outbreak that gripped the country in 2017, killing over 200 people. "These once-off costs more than offset the group's improved underlying performance, despite a particularly challenging second half for the Milling and Baking operations as well as Exports," Tiger Brands said. "The write-off of stock related to the civil unrest as well as the recall will be accounted for through cost of sales. Refunds related to the recall will be accounted for as a reduction in revenue, whilst other recall related costs will be accounted for through the relevant expense functions on the income statement," the company added. Tiger Brands is set to release its half-year results on November 19. Its share price closed almost a percent lower on Tuesday, at R187 a share.

Toyota anticipating SA government support to reduce the price of new energy vehicles

Toyota South Africa Motors (TSAM) is anticipating that the government will provide a support package to reduce the price of new energy vehicles (NEVs) to make them more accessible and drive volumes. TSAM President and CEO Andrew Kirby confirmed on Tuesday he is confident the Automotive Green Paper published by the government "will translate into formal regulations and government support". "It is for this reason that we have set our pricing accordingly so that hybrid technology can become more accessible," he said. Speaking at a function at TSAM's Prospecton Plant in Durban to celebrate the opening of the Corolla Cross production line in South Africa, Kirby said the cost of NEVs is simply not viable for many customers without the type of government support packages that are available in other countries to establish a strong demand.

European stocks closed higher on Tuesday, as positive corporate earnings offered a tailwind to global markets. The pan-European Stoxx 600 closed up by 0.8%, with travel and leisure stocks jumping 1.9% to lead gains with most sectors and major bourses firmly in positive territory. Swiss bank UBS beat analyst expectations in the third quarter on a boom in wealth management, reporting net profit attributable to shareholders of $2.3 billion. UBS shares added 1.3% by the close. wiss-American computer peripherals maker Logitech on Tuesday reported an increase in second-quarter sales on the back of surging demand from home workers.

U.S. stocks climbed to record levels on Tuesday as major corporations continued to turn in solid quarterly results, but major averages closed off their highs of the day with some major tech names rolling over. Nearly 30% S&P 500 companies have reported earnings and more than 80% of them beat Wall Street expectations, according to CNBC calculations. S&P 500 companies are expected to grow profit by about 35.6% in the third quarter.

Shares in Asia-Pacific were lower this morning even as major indexes on Wall Street notched fresh record highs again overnight. Shares in Australia fell as the S&P/ASX 200 declined 0.22%. Australia's consumer price index rose 0.8% in the September 2021 quarter, data from the country's Bureau of Statistics showed. The reading for quarterly consumer inflation was in line with expectations from a Reuters poll. Meanwhile, industrial profits in China surged 16.3% year-on-year in September, according to data released Thursday by China's National Bureau of Statistics.

Gold prices eased earlier today, retreating from the key $1,800 mark, as a stronger U.S. dollar and elevated bond yields dented bullion's safe-haven appeal ahead of key central bank meetings. Meanwhile, oil prices fell this morning after industry data showed crude oil stockpiles rose more than expected and fuel inventories unexpectedly increased last week in the United States, the world's largest oil consumer. Crude oil inventories rose 2.3 million barrels in the week ending Oct. 22, market sources citing American Petroleum Institute figures said late on Tuesday. That was more than the expectations for a 1.9-million-barrel gain.

The rand weakened on Tuesday as precious metals prices fell and power utility Eskom extended scheduled power cuts because of a shortage of generation capacity. Eskom, which regularly enforces outages over faults at its coal-fired power stations that hold back economic growth in Africa's most industrialised nation, said it would extend rolling blackouts to Saturday. At the close of the session, the rand was trading around R14.85 to the dollar, 1.05% weaker.
