SOUTH AFRICAN MARKET COMMENTARY

SELECTED HEADLINES

Stocks on the Johannesburg Stock Exchange fell, mirroring similar moves in the Wall Street and other equity markets as investors prepare for an aggressive interest rate hike from the Fed next week. Overall on the stock market, the Top-40 index ended down 0.64% while the broader All-Share closed 0.58% lower. In other news, South Africa's central bank will raise its key interest rate by 75 basis points next week to brake inflation, a Reuters poll found, adding another 25 basis points in each of the following two quarters before pausing for the rest of 2023.

FIRSTRAND LIMITED – Audited results

The 23% increase in the group's normalised earnings was driven by the materially lower cost of credit, which reflects origination strategies and the continued post-pandemic recovery across the jurisdictions in which the group operates. Topline growth was healthy, driven in particular by the rebound in non-interest revenue (NIR) and costs were well managed. Pleasingly, at 20.6%, the normalised return on equity (ROE) remains well situated in the target range of 18% to 22%. The group produced R10.1 billion of economic profit (2021: R4.9 billion), or net income after cost of capital (NIACC), which is its key performance measure.

AMERICAN MARKET COMMENTARY

SELECTED HEADLINES

U.S. stocks dropped in choppy trading on Thursday as investors mulled over several economic reports that showed a muddy picture of the U.S. economy. Initial jobless claims came in better than expected, but import prices saw a smaller drop than estimates suggested. Retail sales beat expectations, but were negative when excluding autos. Manufacturing data also showed a slowing economy. Bank stocks were a bright spot, with Goldman Sachs and JPMorgan rising more than 1% apiece.

Shares in the Asia-Pacific fell this morning as investors digest U.S. economic data and China's industrial production and retail sales figures for August, which beat expectations. Retail sales increased 5.4% in August from the same period last year, much higher than July's 2.7% and also above the Reuters forecast of 3.5%. Industrial production grew 4.2% last month compared with a year ago, topping the prediction of 3.8% in a Reuters poll. Industrial output came in at 3.8% in July.

COMMODITY MARKET COMMENTARY

SELECTED HEADLINES

Gold prices hovered near a two-year low this morning and were set for a weekly fall as an elevated dollar and prospects of aggressive U.S. rate hikes dented bullion's appeal. Oil prices dipped in early trade today, extending the week's losses as concern over tight supply was outweighed by escalating fear of sharp interest rate hikes slamming global growth and hitting fuel demand. The market was also rattled this week by the International Energy Agency's outlook for almost zero growth in oil demand in the fourth quarter due to a weaker demand outlook for China.

The rand weakened on Thursday, as the U.S. dollar held near recent peaks after traders continued to bet that the U.S. Federal Reserve will be aggressive next week in its battle to curb inflation. At the close of the day, the rand was 0.49% softer versus the dollar as it traded around the R17.58 mark. Meanwhile, the dollar eased from multi-year highs today after a strong rally earlier in the week, though expectations that the Federal Reserve would need to hike more to keep inflation in check sent Treasury yields higher and kept the greenback in demand.
