STANDARD BANK GROUP LIMITED – Voluntary trading update

For the five months ending 31 May 2024 (5M24), the Standard Bank Group's headline earnings grew by low-to-mid single digits compared to the same period in 2023 (5M23). Currency fluctuations, especially in Angola, Malawi, Nigeria, and Zambia, negatively affected this growth. On a constant currency basis, headline earnings increased by mid-teens. Banking activities saw mid-single digit growth. A methodology change for recognizing interest on Stage 3 loans led to higher net interest income and credit impairment charges, but did not impact HEPS or EPS. A restatement for 1H23 is available on the Standard Bank Group Investor Relations website. The group aims to achieve positive jaws and a return on equity between 17% and 20% for 2024. Financial results for 1H24 will be released on 15 August 2024.

European stocks closed higher on Thursday afternoon as investors reacted to policy rate decisions from three central banks. The pan-European Stoxx 600 gained 0.88%, with all sectors and major bourses in positive territory, led by tech stocks which rose over 1.63%. The Bank of England kept interest rates unchanged at a 16-year high of 5.25%, a widely expected move. Most economists had forecast a cut in August following the July 4 election. This decision followed data showing U.K. inflation rose by 2.0% annually in May, hitting the central bank's inflation target.

The S&P 500 and Nasdaq closed lower on Thursday as Nvidia's earlier gains faded. Investors were also assessing economic data and Federal Reserve commentary to gauge the timing of potential interest rate cuts. New unemployment claims fell last week, but the total number of people receiving benefits reached its highest since January, indicating a cooling job market. Additionally, U.S. single-family homebuilding decreased in May due to high mortgage rates.

COMMODITIES MARKET SUMMARY

Gold prices remained steady this morning but were set for their second consecutive weekly gain due to weak U.S. economic data, which boosted expectations of a Federal Reserve interest rate cut this year. Meanwhile, crude oil prices declined in early trading, influenced by the potential for prolonged higher interest rates in both Asia and the U.S., although falling U.S. oil inventories prevented further price drops.

CURRENCY MARKET SUMMARY

SELECTED ITEMS

South Africa's rand slipped on Thursday as investors grew cautious ahead of newly re-elected President Cyril Ramaphosa's cabinet appointments under a unity government. The U.S. dollar reached an eight-week high against the yen and remained close to a five-week peak against the British pound this morning. This strength was driven by the Federal Reserve's cautious approach to cutting interest rates, contrasting with more dovish policies from other central banks.
